

1. What are cookies?

Cookies are text files containing limited amount of information which are placed on your device. Cookies are used to store certain data e.g. to keep track of pages you visit on a website, identify the device you use and remembering settings such as language preferences for your next visit.

We use cookies on our website and we may receive information from you through the use of cookies when you access our website. When you first access our website, a popup banner gives you choice to accept all cookies, refuse all cookies or manage cookies.

By clicking "I accept all cookies", you agree to our use of your information as described in this Policy.

By clicking "I refuse all cookies", please be aware that non-essential cookies will be disabled and not all features of the website may operate as intended.

By clicking "Manage cookies", you will be able to select which cookies to accept.

See further details below on which categories of cookies we use and why we use them. See also below a description on how to give or withdraw your consent or manage your cookies preferences at any time and how to remove cookies.

2. Why do we use cookies?

2.1. Essential cookies

These cookies are required for basic website functions such as navigation and the website will not function properly without the use of these cookies.

2.2. Cookies for site experience

These cookies are used to enhance the site experience and they might be able to e.g. identify the device you use to access the website. Generally no personal identifiable data are collected by these cookies.

2.3. Cookies for statistics

These cookies help us collect statistics on our visitors to understand how you interact with the website by collecting and reporting information from you anonymously.

3. Embedded content

We may embed content from third parties' e.g. video content and application forms. These third parties may use cookies and may receive information collected from those cookies. These parties may also use other categories of cookies than those listed above. Please refer directly to each third party website for more information on how they use cookies.

4. How to manage cookies

Recent version of all major browsers gives you as a user control over cookies on your device. You can choose to accept all, certain or no cookies. Information about how to manage cookies should be provided under the help section of your browser.

5. Contact

If you have any queries concerning our use of cookies, please send us an email at data.privacy@orrön.com.